THE STORY OF PAT.

It may be seen by capt. Macey's letter, that on the east side of the island there is another landing which he calls Pat's landing; and this place will probably immortalize an Irishman, named Patrick Watkins, who some years since left an English ship, and took up his abode on this island, built himself a miserable hut, about a mile from the landing called after him, in a valley containing about 2 acres of ground capable of cultivation, and perhaps the only spot on the island which affords sufficient moisture for the purpose. Here he succeeded in raising potatoes and pumpkins in considerable quantities, which he generally exchanged for rum, or sold for cash. The appearance of this man, from the accounts I have received of him, was the most dreadful that can be imagined; ragged clothes, scarce sufficient to cover his nakedness, and covered with vermin; his red hair and beard matted, his skin much burnt from constant exposure to the sun, and so wild and savage in his manner and appearance that he struck every one with horror. For several years this wretched being lived by himself on this desolate spot, without any apparent desire than that of procuring rum in sufficient quantities to keep himself intoxicated, and at such times, after an absence from his hut of several days, he would be found in a state of perfect insensibility, rolling among the rocks of the mountains. He appeared to be reduced to the lowest grade to which human nature is capable, and seemed to have no desire beyond the tortoises and other animals of the island, except that of getting drunk. But this man, wretched and miserable as he may have appeared, was neither destitute of ambition nor incapable of undertaking an enterprize that would have appalled the heart of any other man; nor was he devoid of the talent of rousing others to second his hardihood.

He by some means became possessed of an old musket and a few charges of powder and ball; and the possession of this weapon first set into action all his ambitious plans. He felt himself strong as the sovereign of the island, and was desirous of proving his strength on the first human being who fell in his way, which happened to be a negro, who was left in charge of a boat belonging to an American ship, that had touched there for refreshments. Patrick came down to the beach where the boat lay, armed with his musket, now become his constant companion, & directed the negro in an authoritative manner, to follow him & on his refusal snapped his musket at him [illegible] negro, however, became intimidated, and followed him. Patrick now shouldered his musket, marched off before, and on his way up the mountains, exultingly informed the negro he was henceforth to work for him, and become his slave, and that his good or bad treatment would depend on his future conduct; but arriving at a narrow defile and perceiving Patrick off his guard, the negro seized the moment, grasped him in his arms, threw him down, tied his hands behind, shouldered him, and carried him to his boat, and when the crew had arrived he was taken on board the ship. An English smuggler was lying in the harbor at the same time, the captain of which sentenced Patrick to be severely whipped on board both vessels, which was put in execution, and he was afterwards taken on shore hand-cuffed by the Englishmen, who compelled him to make known how he had concealed the few dollars he had been enabled to accumulate from the sale of his potatoes and pumpkins, which they took from him; and while they were busy in destroying his hut and garden, the wretched being made his escape, and concealed himself among the rocks in the interior of the island, until the ship had sailed, when he ventured from his skulking place, and by means of an old file which he drove into a tree, freed himself from the hand-cuffs. He now meditated a severe revenge, but concealed his intentions. Vessels continued to touch there, and Patrick, as usual to furnish them with provisions; but from time to time he was enabled by administering potent draughts of his darling liquor to some of the men of their crews, and getting them so drunk that they were rendered insensible, to conceal them until the ship had sailed; when finding themselves entirely dependent on him, they willingly enlisted under his banners, became his slaves, and he the most absolute of tyrants. By this means he had augmented the number to 5, including himself, and every means was used by him to endeavor to procure arms for them but without effect. It is supposed his object was to have surprised some vessel, massacred her crew and taken her off. While Patrick was meditating his plans, two ships, an American and English vessel touched there, and applied to Pat for vegetables. He promised them the greatest abundance, provided they would send their boats to his landing and their people to bring them from his garden, informing them that his rascals had become so indolent of late, that he could not get them to work. This arrangement was agreed to; two boats were sent from each vessel, and hauled on the beach. Their crews all went to Patrick's habitation; but neither he nor any of his people were to be found; and, after waiting till their patience was exhausted, they returned to the beach, where they found the wreck of three of their boats which were broken to pieces, and the fourth one missing. They succeeded however, after much difficulty, in getting around to the bay opposite to their ships, where other boats were sent to their relief; and the commanders of the ships, apprehensive of some other trick, saw no security, except in a flight from the island, leaving Patrick and his gang in quiet possession of the boat; but before they sailed they put a letter in a keg, giving intelligence of the affair, and moored it in the bay, where it was found by capt. Randall, but not until he had sent his boat to Patrick's landing for the purpose of procuring refreshments; and, as may be easily supposed, he felt no little inquietude until her return, when she brought him a letter from Patrick to the following purport, which was found in his hut:

"Sir—I have made repeated applications to captains of vessels to sell me a boat, or to take me from this place but in every instance met with a refusal An opportunity presented itself to possess myself of one, and I took advantage of it. I have been a long time endeavoring, by hard labor and suffering, to accumulate wherewith to make myself comfortable, but at different times have been robbed and maltreated, and in a late instance by capt. Paddock, whose conduct in punishing me, and robbing me of about $ 500, in cash and other articles, neither agrees with the principles he professes, nor is it such as his sleek coat would lead one to suspect.

"On the 29th May, 1809, I sail from the enchanted island in the Black Prince, bound to the Marquesas.

"Do not kill the old hen; she is now sitting, and will soon have chickens.

"FATHERLESS OBERLUS."

Patrick arrived alone at Guyaquil. in his open boat, the rest who sailed with him having perished for want of water, or as is generally supposed, were put to death by him, on his finding the water to grow scarce. From thence he proceeded to Payta, where he wound himself into the affections of a tawny damsel, and prevailed on her to consent to accompany him to his enchanted island, the beauties of which he no doubt painted in glowing colours; but, from his savage appearance, he was there considered by the police as a suspicious person, and being found under the keel of a small vessel, then ready to be launched, and suspected of some improper intention, he was confined in Payta goal, where he now remains; and probably owing to this circumstance Charles' island, as well as the rest of the Gallapagos, may remain unpopulated for many ages to come. This reflection may naturally lead us to the [illegible] the population of the other islands scattered about the Pacific ocean, respecting which so many conjectures have been hazarded, I shall only hazard one, which is briefly this:—That former ages may have produced men equally as bold and daring as Pat, and women as willing as his tender one, to accompany them in their adventurous voyages. And when we consider the issue which might be produced from an union between a red haired wild Irishman, and a copper coloured mix-blooded squaw, we need not be any longer surprised at the different varieties in human nature.

If Patrick should be liberated from durance and should arrive with his love at this enchanting spot, perhaps (when neither Pat nor the Gallapagos are any longer remembered) some future navigator may surprise the world by a discovery of them, and his accounts of the strange people with which they may probably be inhabited; and from the source from which they shall have sprung, it does not seem unlikely that they will have one trait in their character, which is common to the natives of all the islands in the Pacific, a disposition to appropriate to themselves the property of others; and from this circumstance future speculators may confound their origin with that of all the rest.

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE
UNITED STATES,
A PROCLAMATION.

The Senate and House of Representatives of the U. S. have by a joint resolution, signified their desire, that a day be recommended, to be observed by the people of the U. S. with religious solemnity, as A DAY OF THANKSGIVING, and of devout acknowledgments to Almighty God, for his great goodness, manifested in resotring to them the blessing of peace.

No people ought to feel greater obligations to celebrate the goodness of the Great Disposer of events and of the destiny of nations, than the people of the U. States. His kind providence originally conducted them, to one of the best portions of the dwelling place, allowed for the great family of the human race. He protected and cherished them, under all the difficulties and trials to which they were exposed in their early days. Under his fostering care, their habits, their sentiments, and their pursuits, prepared them for a transition in due time for a state of independence and self-government. In the ardous struggle by which it was attained, they were distinguished by multiplied tokens of his benign interposition. During the interval which succeeded, he reared them into the strength, and endowed them with the resources, which have enabled them to assert their national rights, and to enhance their national character, in another ardous conflict, which is now happily terminated by a peace and reconciliation with those who have been our enemies. And to the same Divine Author, of every good and perfect gift, we are indebted for all those privileges and advantages, religious as well as civil, which are so richly enjoyed in this favored land.

It is for blessings, such as these, and more especially for the restoration of the blessings of Peace, that I now recommend that the second Thursday in April next, be set apart as a day on which the people of every religious denomination, may, in their assemblies, unite their hearts and their voices, in a free will offering to their Heavenly Benefactor, of their homage of thanksgiving, and of their songs of praise.

Given at the City of Washington on the fourth day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and fifteen, and of the independence of the United States the thirty-ninth.

JAMES MADISON.

BEDFORD, (Pa.) March 16.

THE BLACK LEGS,
AND THE PATENT SWINDLING BOX.

On Friday evening last, this borough was visited by a crew of those infamous wretches, who are wandering abroad seeking whom they may devour. Amongst the number were found the old offender and notorious cheat, WM: LONG, formerly of Bloody-Run, now of Pittsburgh, and WM: WARD, another travelling gambler. A process being put into the hands of the Sheriff of this county, upon an old indictment pending against Long, and a warrant being issued against Ward and Long, upon suspicion of their being concerned in circulating counterfeit bank notes; these two were arrested. Long, who carried the cash, made his escape from the sheriff and effected his retreat without the loss of his baggage. But Ward, less fortunate, was held in custody, and his baggage was taken. After a strict search, the officer could not discover any notes in his baggage, either counterfeit nor genuine; but found a very general assortment of implements, of fraud and gambling. Amongst other articles were found false dice and numerous packs of artfully marked cards, together with a sweat cloth and two boxes for dealing cards at the Pharo Bank.—One of these boxes he asserted was invented by the noted gambler Bailey, who held a patent for the same, from the patent office of the U. S. The other appeared to be an improvement upon the [illegible] by which a dexterous Black-Legs could with ease throw out cards either from the top or bottom of the box, as might best suit the state of the bets. Ward, after paying the paltry fine imposed by law upon the keepers of gambling tables, and giving surety for his good behaviour for the space of one year, was set at large; the remainder of the crew have been dispersed. Part have gone on to Pittsburgh, with a large stock of notes, for the purpose of carrying on the business at Long's old stand—part have gone southward, and part eastward. The sheriff of our county has offered a reward of one hundred and fifty dollars, for the apprehension of Long, and we hope that every civil officer in the state, and every enemy to fraud and villany, will use their best exertions to bring this hardened offender to justice. We have heard of many patents, both for old and new inventions, but this is the first time we have heard of a patent for an improvement in the art of swindling. Had we not heard it reported from another source, that such a patent did really exist, and was obtained through the influence of a conspicuous member of our national legislature, we should consider the story of Ward as unworthy of notice; nor are we as yet disposed to give credit to the report; but we have thought proper to notice it, to the intent that if it be a slander upon the keeper of the patent office, it may be contradicted.

As it is believed that this knot of villains do not intend to confine their operations to this state alone, nor yet to the U. S. (they having expressed an intention of visiting the islands of Bermuda and Havanna,) it is hoped that the different printers, friendly to virtue, will give the sheriff's advertisement, printed in another part of this paper, 1 or 2 insertions, in their respective papers, gratuitously.

PHILADELPHIA, March 10.

We have seen a letter from Savannah, stating, that

"It is said, and I believe it to be true, that the British force or a part of it, from Cumberland island, has taken possession of Amelia; no doubt, under the cessation of Spain to England."

Extract of a letter from a gentleman of respectability in Paris, to his friend in New York, (in which he has been a resident for a number of years) dated

"Paris, Dec. 10, 1814.

"Things begin to assume a brighter prospect here. The KING, is a man of resolute mind—and of fine understanding—I cannot too much admire him for the courage he has displayed. Coming, as it were in the midst of ruins—having against him the army—the jacobins—and the purchasers of national domains—he did not despair of the safety of France and proceeds on towards accomplishing it without either noise or parade. There have been several conspiracies, all of which have been suppressed without any remarkable interposition of authority. The disposition of the troops is growing better every day. Apprehension of danger for the King were not long since entertained, or meant to frighten him.—Some of the marshals advised him not to make his appearance at the Theatre of Bodeon. He replied: "I will go, I am under no fear—it is for you to answer for every thing." Orders were immediately given, and in less than an hour and a half, 10,000 troops from Sevres, Courbevoye and Vincennes, arrived, and all took an emphattical oath, to shed the last drop of their blood, for the King and the Royal family. You may give this as a fact.

"Marshal Soult has recently been appointed Secretary of War, which very much pleases the army. Macdonald has spoken with great energy in favor of the emigrants, and has caused the army to vote 12 millions per annum out of their pay, for their relief."

We understand that 2 powerful squadrons, (to include the whole disposable force of the U. S.) are preparing for the Mediterranean, against the Algerines—The 1st division, it is reported, will consist of the light vessels purchased at N. York, by capt. Porter, the Guerriere and Constellation frigates, &c.

KING OF HAYTI.

This sable sovereign seems resolved to be behind hand with no monarch, Oriental or European, in the external magnificence of exalted rank. The ceremonies of his court—his princes and princesses—the gradations of his nobility in dukes, and counts, and barons, have already been before the public. A crown, a sceptre, robes, and other attributes of the regalia, have already been sent out to his majesty from this country. Articles for the completion of his public equipage, manufactured by eminent sadlers in the city, are now ready to be shipped for Hayti. In their quality, design, and execution, they are perhaps unequalled in their kind in the display of any potentate of Europe, on the proudest occasions. They consist of a state saddle and state harness for eight horses The saddle is of a very large size, the seat part much curved; with pistol holsters, and a large saddle cloth. The whole is made of crimson Genoa velvet; the seat worked in devices, with yellow silk and studdied with gold. The holster covers and saddle cloth are most splendidly embroidered with broad variegated [illegible] gold borderings, and trimmed with rich fringes of gold bullion, headed with roses and decorated with tassels of the same description at the corners. On each side of the cloth is represented in gold embroidery, his majesty's coat of arms, with stars and sprigs of oak. The heraldrick bearings are a shield; on the field gules, a phoenix issuing from flames, with a motto on a curved rioband underneath, "Je renais de mes cendres." The field is dotted with nine mulles. The supporters are two lions rampant and crowned. The motto underneath is "Dieu, ma cause, et mon epee." The shield is surrounded by a crown, not exactly like the regal crowns of England or France, nor opening like the Imperial crown, but of large dimensions, and spreading more than the European crowns. It is surrounded by the collar of the new order of Hayti, with the cross pendant. The double holster covers have similar decorations. The stirrups are of silver, curiously chased and gilt. The bridle and stirrup holders are of black japanned leather, embossed with silver, gilt phoenixes, and military trophies. The state harness for eight horses is magificent without heaviness. It is of japanned black leather, and is enriched with a splendid profusion of ornaments, all of solid silver, but not gilt. Winkers, bosses, face pieces, neck-bands, ferrits, traces, &c. are all adorned with crowns, phoenixes, or full coats of arms, the reins of crimson silk, adorned with gold bullion tassels. On the whole, we believe, that nothing so costly has yet been executed; and the general effect of it, glittering under a tropical sun, must form a beautiful and superb feature in the pageantry of King Henry.—London paper.

Extracts from an ORATION, delivered before the "WASHINGTON BENEVOLENT SOCIETY OF PENNSYLVANIA," February 22d, 1815, by JOHN MORIN SCOTT, Esq. one of the members.

"The splendid halls of legislation, consecrated by the name of WASHINGTON, have fallen beneath the flames of Vandals. Shame on those who warr'd against the arts—shame on those who suffered the disgrace. Where was then your President, the Commander in Chief of your armies? Did he at the head of a Spartan band, maintain the pass which led to the temple of your liberties? Did he even to its gate-way, stem the torrent of invasion—and under its majestic arches, still wave the standard of freedom? Did he press on the retiring foe—harass their retreating columns—enclose them in the net woven by their own temerity? Did he prove himself worthy to hold the high station, the gift of freemen?—No! He turned affrighted from the face of War; and the flashes which gleamed from the summit of your Capitol, lighted the road of his retreat."

"Almost three years have the administration been profusely expending the blood and treasure of the nation. What have they gained? A Treaty, which buries in the silence of the grave, every principle for which they said they warr'd, and which themselves declared could not be abandoned without disgrace. Not one solitary object of their ambition has been accomplished—all their designs avowed or covert, have been defeated—disappointment has alike attended their visionary demands and schemes of conquest. Real advantages have been sacrificed—our fisheries are narrowed—our commerce is restricted—the question of boundary before at rest, is now opened to discussion: a fruitful source of future dissention—a base for other wars. Much of individual misery has been suffered—the progress of improvement is arrested—in our advance to greatness we are thrown back an incalculable distance. Our treasury is most disgracefully bankrupt—its bills protested—its receipts anticipated—an immense debt accumulated—oppressive taxes rendered necessary. These are the bitter fruits of this most unhappy war!"

"The Halcyon days of our beloved Country, now promise to return. Those days of bright prosperity, to which of late, we have often turned an agonized view—as to the image of some loved, last object of affection, whose form faintly shadowed thro' the mists of time would still return amid the dreams of fancy to quicken the expiring pulses of delight. The olive branch once more is ours—it comes the harbinger of happiness—scattering blessings from every leaf. May the bands of amity long unite two nations, whom community of origin—identity of language—similarity of habits—and equal attachment to genuine freedom—invite to lasting friendship."

BY THE GOVERNOR OF THE
STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA,
A PROCLAMATION.

IN compliance with a resolution of the general assembly, and under the influence, I trust, of proper feeling, I recommend to my fellow citizens of Pennsylvania, THE SECOND THURSDAY OF APRIL NEXT, as a day of Thanksgiving and acknowledgment to Almighty God, for the manifold blessings he has so bountifully bestowed on us; particularly for the recent proof of his interposition to save from destruction the fairest fabric of rational freedom now extant, founded on the external and immutable rules of right implanted into original unconcepted nature, and ever fostered by His almighty hand. That in our religious assemblies solemnly, & with christian humbleness, we supplicate Him, the giver of all good, to diffuse amongst us a spirit of gratitude towards himself, and of charity and forgiveness towards all our public and private enemies. And, that, owing as we do, all that is endearing to man, to His protecting hand, He would [illegible] our beloved country may remain a sure assylum for the oppressed of all nations, and perpetuate happy political and religious institutions, and in due time diffuse throughout the earth the spirit of His grace, and the true enobling rights and privileges originally intended by Him for the government of the great family of mankind.

Given under my hand and the great seal of the state, at Harrisburgh, this thirteenth day of March, one thousand eight hundred & fifteen, and of the commonwealth the thirty-ninth.

By the Governor, N. B. BOILEAU, Sec'y.

DIED, on Sunday night last, after a few days illness, Mrs. ELIZABETH T. O'HARA, relict of Mr. James O'Hara, Jr. and daughter of Gen. Presley Nevill, of this town.

OBITUARY NOTICE.

ELIZABETH THERESA O'HARA—Genius and taste lie buried with the victim of sentiment—formed to adorn society, she spoke but to please; she acted, but to excite admiration. The tear that is shed over her cold grave is the last tribute of sympathy to virtue. She has left a numerous family connection who can now estimate her worth by the grief they feel for her loss. In the departments of science, or in the parterres of taste, she had few superiors of our sex, none of her own—her musical abilities excited a degree of admiration, which her literary attainments did not permit to subside—her system was too feeble for her mind—her's was a translation rather than a death—an exhaustion of vital principle rather than a deprivation of it. Few possess the virtues of the lovely subject of our notice; let all endeavour to attain them.—[Communicated

A gentleman who came passenger in the Transit, has favored the Editors of the New York "Mercantile Advertiser," with the following items of intelligence:

"Mr. ADAMS and Mr. RUSSELL, proposed to return to their respective residences, Russia and Stockholm; Mr. R. meant to pass a few weeks in Paris. Mr. GALLATIN to visit his friends in Switzerland. Mr. CLAY to visit France and England. Mr. BAYARD, will accompany Mr. CLAY, and will embark with that gentleman and Mr. GALLATIN, in the Neptune, from a port in England, on or about the last of March, or 1st of April, for the U. States.

"It is a singular circumstance that Mr. CRAWFORD, our Minister at Paris, should have received the first information of the signature of Peace from the Duke of WELLINGTON, who had received the news by express from Ghent.—The Duke accompanied by Lord SOMERSETT, the Secretary of the British Legation, called on Mr. C. the next day. The day ensuing, Mr. CRAWFORD, accompanied by Mr. HUGHES, returned his visit. The two ministers were upon a footing of the most pleasant intercourse.

"All the Foreign ministers resident in Paris, were calling at the Hotel of Mr. CRAWFORD, tendering to him their congratulations on the conclusion of Peace. It was believed in Paris, that a special messenger would be sent out by that court to compliment the government of the U. S. on the happy occasion."

We have seen several gentlemen who arrived in town last evening from St. Mary's, and are informed by them that it was asserted there, that on Thursday last a squadron of British barges from Cumberland, containing about 300 seamen and marines, had gone up the St. Mary's river for the purpose of burning Clark's mills—that within a mile of the mills the enemy were met on the banks of the river by 18 or 20 patriots, and as many militia from Colonel Scott's camp, who engaged the barges, drove them back, and are said to have killed and wounded upwards of one hundred of the enemy. The inhabitants of St. Mary's were much alarmed, fearing that the British would, in consequence of their defeat, burn the town. The commander of the squadron is said to have been killed—on the American side none killed or wounded.

[Letters received in this city yesterday from the southward, confirm the above, and add, that Capt. Jackson of the Lacedemonian, is supposed to be among the killed.

They have been found remarkably efficacious in preventing and curing disorders attendant on long voyages, and should be procured for use by every seaman.

HAMILTON'S

WORM DESTROYING LOZENGES,

Which have, within years past, cured an immense number of persons of both sexes, of every age, and in every situation, of various dangerous complaints arising from Worms, and from obstructions or foulness in the stomach and bowels.

This Medicine bears no analogy whatever to others of similar title, so commonly complained of as operating with violence; on the contrary, a particular excellence of this remedy is its being suited to every age & constitution. It contains nothing but what is perfectly innocent, and so mild in its operation that it cannot injure the most delicate pregnant lady, or an infant of a week old, should no worms exist in the body; but will, without pain, cleanse the stomach and bowels, of whatever is foul, and and thereby prevent the production of worms, and many fatal disorders. The Lozenges are efficacious in taking off all gross humors and eruptions, feverish complaints, and the safest and mildest purgative that can be used on any occasian.

A dose of this medicine given occasionally during the warm season, will prevent "the vomiting and purging of children"—a disorder which annually destroys thousands of the infant part of our citizens. It is also the mildest and most certain remedy known, and has restored to health and strength a vast number when in advanced stage of this fatal complaint. Particular and plain instructions are given for every part of the necessary treatment in suoh cases.

Children generally take this medicine with eagerness; having a pleasing appearance and a mild taste.

Doctor CHISHOLMS,

Anti-Bilious Pills,

OF A QUALITY

Superior to any thing of the kind ever offered as a

GENERAL MEDICINE,

IN THIS COUNTRY,

NOW prepared from a recipe of the celebrated Dr Chisholm, who, from a long residence in the West-India islands, has been enabled to favor the world with the most complete history, and most approved methods of curing all the BILIOUS DISEASES of those warm climates

This extraordinary medicine, which now for the first time is finding its way into general practice, has properties in the highest degree superior to the mercurial nostrums so frequently recommended by the name of Anti-Bilious Pills. The extraordinary powers of this medicine as a solvent and evacuant of bile, is without example; never producing debility, or injuring the health, in the smallest degree, of the most delicate child, or weakly female.

The BILIOUS HEAD-ACHE, so much complained of in this country, and in the neighbourhood of rivers, is often removed by a single dose, which, to a strong man, is only five pills, and to a weakly woman, three. The same dose will generally remove the most excrutiating pains of the cholic, like a charm, by abusing the bile to pass downwards in the course of an hour or two.

Two or three Pills taken an hour before dinner, and repeated every third day, will effectually remove those diseases arising from flatulency and indigestion, and by persevering in the use of them for a considerable time, the appetite will be improved, and strength and vigor will return.

Two Pills taken at bed time, with a cup of penny-royal tea, and repeated every second night, will effectually remove Rheumatic pains, wherever seated.

A single Pill, taken every fourth hour with a cup of flax-seed tea, will cure Pleurisy, promote expectoration, and relieve coughs and colds.

In CONSUMPTIVE CASES and diseases of the liver, no medicine ever yet discovered, has been known to perform such cures. Two Pills, taken every third morning, will be found sufficient, unless costiveness prevails; in which case, the dose may be increased according to the strength or constitution.

The Dysentery, Croup, and Summer Complaint on children, are soon relieved by a few doses. A single Pill to a child of 6 years old, and the dose increased according to their strength and age.

In Asthmatic or Phthisical cases, where the laborious breathing and great oppression, with faintings, are fast sinking the patient to the brink of the grave, a few Pills, taking one every hour, with fennel or pepper-mint tea, will often enable the patient to walk about in a few hours.

The above valuable Medicine is Sold ONLY in Pittsburgh, by

J. P. & J. W. Skelton,

At their Wholesale and Retail Apothecary and Drug Store.

PATAPSCO COTTON FACTORY.

THE subscribers beg leave to announce to the public, that they have their FACTORY, near Ellicott's mills, in complete operation, and have opened their Warehouse, at No. 140, Market street, (the store formerly occupied by the Union Manufacturing Company) for the sale of COTTON YARN, of which they have on hand an extensive assortment. They flatter themselves that from the quality of their machinery, and the improved plan of the whole works, they will be enabled to offer as good Yarn as any made in the U. S. Country merchants will find it their interest to call and look at the Yarn.

EDWARD GRAY & Co.

Doctor Handy's,

WORM DESTROYING

LOZENGES,

A safe and efficacious Medicine for de stroying and bringing away

WORMS.

MAY be used with safety by children of any age, or as common physic by the most delicate constitution, in any climate, without restraint of diet, or the smallest danger from cold. It may be given with advantage after the small-pox or measles; or as a family medicine, in any case where physic is necessary. The most frequent seat of worms in the human body, is the intestinal tube; but occasionally they have been found in almost every other part of the body.

Some very extraordinary cases of Worms, of an unusual form and appearance, being brought away by these Lozenges, have been made public in England, where the rapid sale of the medicine has exceeded any thing of the kind ever known before; and has also proved, to a demonstration, its approved superiority, as an athelminthick, to the numerous puffed-up, useless nostrums, which are daily advertised in the newspapers.

A single dose of this valuable Medicine has often been known to remove half a pot-full of the Teres or Round Worms.

A few doses are generally sufficient to remove the Ascarides, a small white worm, the seat of which is either the stomach or rectum.

Even the Tape Worm, at all times the most difficult to destroy, may, by persevering in the frequent use of this medicine, be totally removed in the course of a few weeks.

To select cases, with the names of people who are not known here, and living at a great distance, would be useless, and take up too much of the reader's time. We shall therefore only observe, for the benefit of those who are unacquainted with the symptoms of worms, that they are known or suspected to exist by a pain in the stomach, attended with a sudden depression of spirits before eating; at other times, the belly is hard, painful and distended with wind—costiveness, head-ache, and trembling of the limbs, with a sense of something rising in the throat—pale complexion and emaciated body, with weakness and irregular appetite—convulsive, epileptic, or falling fits—pains in the back and side, and frequent itching of the nose, and sometimes of the anus. The above, and a long train of afflicting diseases may all be occasioned by worms, which are much oftener the cause of death than is commonly believed.

The above valuable Medicine is sold only by

J. P. & J. W. SKELTON,

at their wholesale and retail Drug Store, at the corner of Wood and Third Streets, Pittsburgh.
